Speed Ratings Race Card

Here the main Inform Racing race card provides all relevant speed ratings plus draw data, VDW ratings, run style information, links to form guides, advanced search feature and more.

All cards open sorted by race card number but all columns can be sorted by clicking each heading title to bring the best ratings to the top. Each race card gives you a great overview of a horses overall and recent speed ratings form for the race and by using the highlighted ratings to guide you, will show you the most likely winners of each race. The top 3 rated in the Master column provide 50% plus of all winners, year in, year out.

Key to the race card:

No. is the race card number.

Dr. is the draw or stall number for each runner, flat racing only. Dr% is the percentage of wins from each stall at today's course and distance with the same number of runners as today, plus and minus three.

The Master column shows the highest rating achieved in the last twelve months.

The Lto column shows the rating achieved in the last race that the horse ran in, with the next two columns showing the rating for the two previous races run and the small number to the right of the rating is the number of days from today that each race was run.

The Avg column is the average number of the horses last three ratings.

The M+A column is the addition of the Master rating and the Avg rating showing up horses with good previous and current form.

The Cse column is the highest rating achieved at the course in the last twelve months.

The Dis column is the highest rating achieved at the race distance in the last twelve months.

The VDW Ratings combine a class or ability rating and a form rating to help highlight winners in a race. The VDW ability rating is found by adding up all winning prize money won by each horse and dividing this total by the number of wins to give an average winning prize money rating and by dividing all winning prize money by 100 and then rounding up or down, a useable number can be calculated. The form rating is simply the addition of a horses last three finishing positions, using 10 for any position of 10 or worse. So a horse that finished 6th, 14th and 2nd in its last three races would have a form rating of 18.

The links in blue underneath the card are to other features explained later on and below these you have the run style figures for the winners of the last 20 races at the course, over the same distance and with the same number of runners as today, plus and minus three. Due to certain course configurations and distances, many races are won by the same type of running style and this may highlight horses to look out for in a race. An explanation of the run style feature can be found later on.

Race Stats Boxes

Hovering over each horse reveals a quick view stats box showing all relevant information for each runner to let you quickly see which horses have a chance in the race and just as importantly, those that don't.

Rating Form Details

When you hover your mouse over any of the Master ratings or the three Lto (Last time out) ratings on the card, another box will appear showing details of the race where the rating was achieved. In the example below, you can see that the rating for Pret A Thou's last run 15 days ago, was achieved at Warwick, over 2m on Good to Soft (GS) going, there were 16 runners and it was a Hurdle race. It was a class 4 handicap race with a value to the winner of £3,119.00, the horse had a handicap rating for the race of 108, finished 11th at a starting price of 16/1, had a run style for this race of 1 which means it led or was prominent in the early stages of the race, the jockey was Harry Challoner and the winner of the race achieved a speed rating of 80.

Run Style Figures

Using the in-running comments we turn each run style into a number and show the last 15 run style figures on the quick view race stats box for each horse so you can see at a glance how a horse has been running and is likely to run as in this example:

Run Style: 4.1.1.1.2.1.1.1.1.2.1.1.1

Looking at the key below this shows a horse that has led or been prominent in 12 of its last 13 races and knowing this can be a massive help in a variety of situations when betting on a horse.

1 = Led, prominent

3 = Midfield

2 = Tracked, chased leaders

4 = Held up, started slowly

Want to know where the pace in the race will be? Look for all the horses with predominantly '1's in their form.

Want to back a horse that is well drawn low on an inside rail? Check that it's run style figures are not predominantly '3's and '4's which may negate this advantage.

Like to back in running? If a favourite is likely to be held up then wait until the off for a better price when the horse falls off the early pace, or if you know a horse is likely to get an easy lead, then back it to lay some off as it's price shortens quickly after the start.

Each horse's last available 15 run style figures are shown on the race stats box below so you can see at a glance how every horse is likely to run. Plus all run style figures are shown on the form guide too.

The form guide opens in chronological order with the most recent race at the top and all columns can be sorted to group the information together by clicking the arrows at the top of each header, allowing you to see at a glance, how a horse has performed at a course, a distance, under a certain jockey or whatever you choose. The days column at the far right shows the number of days between each run. The form guide below has been sorted by 'wins' which are all highlighted in yellow. Today's race conditions are shown at the top for each column in red allowing you to easily compare past form with the race in hand.

No other form guide is as simple to use or as easy to manipulate and all the horses in the race are on the same page so you can check every race of the day in minutes. There are hundreds of horses which 'fit' into particular categories of race preferences and you can now see these clearly by sorting the columns in whichever way you choose to find a horses favoured racing conditions with ease.

Big priced winners come in on a regular basis but it is often thought that a 'freak' result has just occurred. This is not always the case. It is just that most punters don't have the necessary tools at their disposal.

Most winners can be found in the form book but who wants to trawl through thousands of pages just to find out if a horse prefers small fields to big ones or left handed tracks to right handed ones? What could literally take you hours, you can now do it in seconds.

You can now search the database to cross reference a horses past form using one or a combination of search fields. The page opens showing the win to runs strike rate for each runner, the position for these runs (or last ten if there are more) and the speed ratings achieved for these runs.

To use the feature, click on any item from one of the search fields or hold down the 'Ctrl' key to click more than one, then click 'Go'. The results will show all horses win percentage and number of wins to runs as well as the last ten finishing positions and speed figures that were achieved under these searched conditions. Vital information that is found in seconds.

As an example you may want to see how all horses in the race have run between 1 mile and 1 mile 2 furlongs on Good ground or softer in March, April and May or any other combination that you wish to check out.

The Advanced Search Facility will prove to be an invaluable weapon all year round and will make a huge difference to your betting success. Find a horse that has a little known preference for one or more aspect of racing and you will be able to turn that information into cash. It takes about five minutes to work through every decent race on the day to find any horses that stand out under today's race conditions, many of which will be 'under the radar' of most punters due to poor recent form, however this recent form was possibly in race conditions that didn't suit. Now you know the conditions favour the horse and can take advantage of this fact.

In racing, as in many aspects of life, knowledge is power and along with the race cards, form guides and more to help you, this feature will put you head and shoulders above all other punters who are regularly losing their bets based on just the basic information and form figures printed in their daily paper.

Be far better informed and you can be a winner starting today with the Inform Racing professional horse racing speed ratings.

In Depth Form Guides

The following tables open in the same window as the race cards in the centre of the screen and can be viewed at the same time as the cards themselves. They are all on one page so you can scroll up and down to see all four tables for each race all at once.

Race Condition Table

See how each runner has performed at today's course, distance, field size and on all goings, all in one place. Figures in blue highlight a strike rate of between 25% to 49%, those in red a strike rate of 50% or better.

This table shows you how each horse has performed at today's course, course hand (left handed or right handed), distance, number of runners plus and minus two as well as on all going descriptions so that you can see how a horse has fared whatever the ground condition on the day as it can often change overnight or even during racing. The going descriptions shown are Firm, Good to Firm, Good, Good to Soft, Soft, Heavy, Standard and Standard to Slow - the last two being on the all weather courses.

The run style figures table shows the last ten run style figures for each runner, the average of the last three runs, the average of the last ten runs, the total and the run style figure that appears most. It also shows the stall number for each runner in the Draw column and the draw number success rate for today's course, distance and number of runners plus and minus three.

The horses highlighted in yellow in the Draw column are those that have a 1 or a 2 in the 'Most' column and should highlight horses that are likely to lead or be prominent in a race and the stalls that they are drawn in. This shows you where the pace of the race is likely to come from and in large fields, especially in races of up to a mile on straight courses, this knowledge can be invaluable.

Official Ratings Table

This table highlights runners on a good handicap mark compared to their last and highest winning official ratings, plus the last ten handicap ratings and finishing positions.

This table highlights horses that are well handicapped compared to their last win in a handicap race. In the To Last column, any horse with a minus figure is running with an official handicap rating below that of its last win, suggesting that it may have a chance in today's race.

The table shows today's handicap rating, the last winning rating and the highest ever winning rating, the other columns show the last ten runs with the handicap ratings on the day in blue and the finishing position in red.

So the Last column above shows the last handicap rating that the horse won off and next to this is today's handicap rating. For Bert The Alert, the horse last won off 65 and has a rating today of 70 which means the horse is carrying 5 pounds more today (+5). Height Of Summer on the other hand is carrying 2 pounds less than its last win (-2), so would seem to have some sort of chance. Some horses win at very good prices on the day that they carry the same or 1 pound less than their last winning rating, after coming down the handicap from higher ratings and as such are well worth looking out for.

Catching a horse when it is about to win is the aim and these runners very close to, or just below their last winning rating should be capable of running well at least, taking all other criteria into account such as distance and going etc. Whilst I would suggest looking for horses with a minus figure in the To Last column, horses that are -10 or bigger may have had their chance, being well out of form and continue to be dropped in the handicap without winning.

This being said, it may be that all previous runs have not been under their favoured conditions, so it is worth taking a look at all horses with a minus figure to see if today may be the day and when these really well handicapped horses with a large minus figure do pop in, it can be at a huge price on many occasions.

Race Class Table

Horses dropping in class can run well so this table shows you the last five race classes for each horse, the finishing position and race value plus an average of the last three and last five runs.

The race class table shows the class of race, the finishing position and the value of the race to the winner, for the last five runs for each horse. Horses that drop in class can often win and this table will highlight these 'class droppers'.

Today's class and race value is shown in the header at the top so it is easy to compare this race with recent races. The last two columns show the average race value for the latest three and five runs. A higher value in one of these compared to today's value, particularly the Avg 3 column, would show a horse that has been running in much better races and may now be ready to take advantage of an easier opportunity.
